The Reporter: June 14, 2025

The government’s new 1.93 trillion Birr federal budget—its first since signing a USD 3.4 billion agreement with the International Monetary Fund (IMF) and World Bank last May—is drawing sharp criticism from economists and financial experts who warn it reflects foreign dictates more than local priorities.

Economic analyst KebourGhenna describes the budget as “an economic obituary for the public sector,” pointing to its lack of new infrastructure projects, domestic manufacturing stimulus, income tax relief, or meaningful support for the poor.

7. Existing Global Trade Policies Validate Urgency of Fast-tracking AfCFTA: Afreximbank

ENA: June 18, 2025

President of African Export–Import Bank (Afreximbank), Professor Benedict Oramah addressed the implications of shifting global trade policies, including the reintroduction of reciprocal tariffs by the U.S., noting that such developments further validate the urgency of fast-tracking the African Continental Free Trade Area (AfCFTA).

In a powerful exchange moderated by Michael Rheinegger of the Swiss-African Business Circle on the sidelines of the Swiss-Africa Business Day, Afreximbank President joined WTO Director-General Dr. Ngozi Okonjo-Iweala for an insightful conversation on Africa’s evolving trade landscape, policy shifts, and the continent’s evolving partnerships.

Prof. Oramah emphasized that the current global trade issues highlight the critical need to expedite the AfCFTA process.

With intra-African trade still accounting for less than 18 percent of total trade, the AfCFTA provides a viable mechanism to build resilient value chains, stimulate industrial growth, and reduce reliance on external markets.
